DOMINION ENTERTAINMENT SWINGS INTO DOMESTIC DISTRIBUTION ARENA WITH THEATRICAL RELEASE

..... ■
JACQUELINE BISSET, JONATHAN WINTERS, TOM SKERRITT &
NELL CARTER STAR IN TIMELESS TALE OF FOLLOWING ONE'S DREAMS

L.A.-based film production and distribution company Dominion Entertainment has inked a deal to handle the domestic theatrical release of the feature film SWING, which is set for a Spring release. Written and executive produced by Mary Keil, produced by Ken Patton and directed by Martin Guigui, the ensemble film includes veteran actors Jacqueline Bisset, Jonathan Winters, Tom Skerritt and Barry Bostwick alongside newcomers Innis Casey and Constance Brenneman. SWING also features the last performance of late actor and Tony Award-winner Nell Carter who also starred in the long-running hit TV show "Gimme-a-Break."

Dominion Entertainment President David DeFalco, who founded the production company in 1997, noted, "We are excited to be on-board for the domestic theatrical release of a film like SWING, which features performances from such seasoned actors and which has such cross-generational appeal," adding that the company has plans to expand their feature film theatrical distribution activities later this year.

SWING focuses on Anthony Verdi, a young man (Casey) caught between his dream of being a full-time musician and pleasing his tradition-minded father (Skerritt) and his success-oriented fiancé (Dahlia Waingort). Anthony finds inspiration in his great-uncle Bill (Winters) and in a beautiful and enigmatic older woman (Bisset), who teaches him to swing dance when he wanders into a nightclub frozen in time.

The original film score is by San Francisco-based Gennaro Cannelora. In addition, popular Bay Area retro swing band Jellyroll performs their original numbers, and Black Tie Jazz Orchestra plays such classic swing era tunes as Little Brown Jug and Song of India.
